Carol Stream, Ill. – Aug. 20, 2009 – Constructech magazine honored the 2009 Vision Award winners during a special ceremony at the fourth annual Technology Day conference, held this year at the Crowne Plaza Chicago O'Hare hotel.

The Constructech Vision Awards honor companies that have realized the advantages of applying innovative technologies to their everyday businesses as well as the technology enablers that have helped them achieve their goal.

Any company involved in residential, commercial, and heavy construction, professionals in all trades, architectural and engineering firms, corporate owners, facility management companies, government agencies, and land developers are eligible for a Constructech Vision Award.

"In today's market, construction companies must face new challenges head on, and bring customers the most affordable, quality product they can. This goal can be achieved with the use of the right technology solutions," said Mike Carozzo, chief editor, Constructech. "The companies named as Vision Award winners recognize this necessity, and have become more successful as a result of implementing technology."

The winners of the 2009 Constructech Vision Awards are:

In addition, Constructech also awarded a special Team Award. The Team Award goes to a project team that has experienced considerable success with using leading-edge technology specifically on one single project or program. The 2009 Team Award was given to:

Tocci Building Corporation

Autodesk

"The companies honored at tonight's ceremony are truly the definition of 'excellence' in the construction industry. Each company has learned and benefited from the top-notch technology solutions they deploy today," said Peggy Smedley, editorial director of Constructech. "It is important to recognize these success stories, and we want to congratulate all of the winners for their superior achievements."
